AYMARA TEXTILES

Traditional Aymara textiles

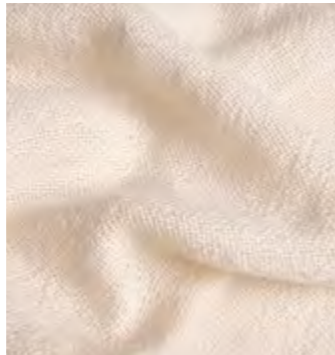

The Aymara peoples of northern Chile inherited the textile practice, techniques and a variety of pieces, from ancient Andean prehispanic people, preserving until today its textile traditions, passed down through generations.

With a small number of simple tools, the artisans made fabrics of great neatness and complex textile manufacturing.

MAPUCHE SILVERSMITH

Traditional Mapuche Silversmith

The traditional silversmithing is one of the most representative artistic expressions of the Mapuche culture. Silver metal has been attributed to a symbolism associated with feminine energy and the fertilizing luminosity of the Cosmos, poetically named as “Tears of the Moon”.

Currently Mapuche artisans, who have inherited the craft through generations, make these pieces. The jewels of today are scaled versions of the pieces traditionally used by Mapuche women, allowing them to be used as contemporary fittings.

MAPUCHE TEXTILES

The image displays two distinct pieces of Mapuche textile. The piece on the left is a dark fabric, possibly black or dark brown, featuring a large, central, light-colored geometric pattern. This pattern consists of interlocking, stepped shapes that form a complex, somewhat circular or diamond-like structure. The piece has a fringed edge at the bottom. The piece on the right is a lighter-colored fabric, likely beige or tan, with a repeating geometric pattern of diamonds and triangles. The pattern is intricate, with smaller geometric motifs within the larger shapes. This piece also has a fringed edge at the bottom. The background is a plain, light color, possibly white or cream.

MAPUCHE RUGS

The textile knowledge and its recreation are associated with magic-religious practices and beliefs of the Mapuche culture. The Mapuche women transmit the craft of textile art of mothers and grandmothers to their daughters and granddaughters. This learning is a passage to adulthood, thus forming an important part of female socialization.
